Your recent letter was kindly forwarded to me by Ambassador Kenneth Rush.

I am afraid I have no immediate answer to the problem you face with respect to your children's education. I do know, however, that the American Embassy does have an information service which can perhaps be of assistance to your son in identifying possible universities in the United States and the availability of scholarships in them for foreign students. I suggest you start the search with an examination in that source, following which I would be very happy to do anything I can to vouch for the good character of your son's family and my opinion of his father. Perhaps this could be of some assistance in calling his application to the attention of the appropriate authorities.

I know you have had a difficult period, but I also am totally hopeful that your own courage and good faith will lead you to a successful new life in France.

Please give my very best regards to

Sincerely,

/s/ W. E. Colby
